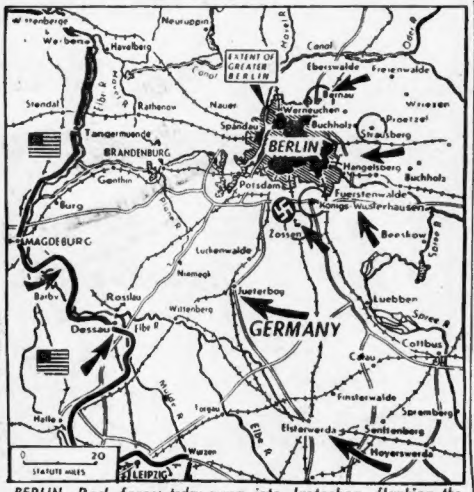
Red Armies at Berlin

By RICHARD KASISCHKE

LONDON, April 21 (AP)—The Germans declared today 1,500,000 Russian troops laying siege to Berlin had battered into five suburbs, and flanked the shell-pounded capital on the southwest with a sweep to within 32 miles of American lines. Even as Soviet guns pounded the Potsdamer Platz in the heart of Berlin, Moscow dispatches asserted the desperate defenders had fired forests and blown up a power dam, unleashing torrents of water on Soviet infantrymen who grabbed at trees, bushes, and barns.



BERLIN—Red forces today swung into Jueterbog, flanking the Nazi capital from the south and making a junction with American forces appear imminent. Other Soviet troops continued their sledge hammer blows on the perimeter north and east of the city.

A German broadcast said 16 armies, including four tank armies were pounding at Berlin's gates in a battle "never surpassed in ferocity." Moscow reported the Germans were making suicide charges with fixed bayonets.

Soviet forces, by enemy account, had fought their way into Berlin suburbs at five places—Bernau, Strausberg, Fuerstenwalde, Koenigs-Wusterhausen and Zossen.

The Russian drive to Bernau, three miles from the city limits, was announced by the German high command. This action constituted part of the northern envelopment move against Berlin. One broadcast said the Russians were only two miles from the city limits.

In a swift penetration of Nazi defences below the capital, other Russian forces advanced to potions southwest of the capital, the German Transocean Agency announcer. In this sweep the Russians reached the vicinity of Beelitz and Treuenbrietzen, respectively 12 and 22 miles southwest of Berlin's great southwestern suburb of Potsdam and to Jueterbog, only 35 miles from American positions.

Moscow dispatches indicated American and Russian forces may be only 25 miles apart and said excitement was mounting over the prospect of an early junction between the two armies. Russian pilots reported they had sighted both American and Russian forces.

The Nazi defenders of Berlin set fire to forests outside the city to try to stop the Russians, but Red tanks plowed through the blazing trees.

The German high command announced a 35-mile breakthrough scored by Marshal Konev's First Ukrainian Army had reached Jueterbog.

To the north the First White Russian Army, making a frontal assault on Berlin, was locked in a bitter battle with Nazi defenders of the capital along the Fuerstenberg-Strausberg-Bernau line, the German high command said.

Still farther north other Russian forces were declared to have forced two bridgeheads over the Oder between Schwedt and Stettin, guarding the northern approaches to Berlin.

"Great Russian encircling moves are drawing closer towards the capital," the German Transocean agency said. "Russian spearheads have reached the northeastern, eastern and southern suburbs of Berlin."

Both German and Russian accounts described the fighting

Yanks, Reds Junction Only Hours Away Now

PARIS, April 21 (AP)—U. S. and Soviet troops drove today toward a junction to split the Nazi front, and the dramatic junction appeared to be only a matter of hours. Patrols may already have met along the Elbe some 75 miles south of Soviet-besieged Berlin.

Allied armies meanwhile chewed into the two great remaining German pockets in the north and south, and the American Third Army, in a second thrust into Czechoslovakia, captured Asch, in a push aimed at blocking off the munitions cities of Pilsen and Prague.

Canadians drove harder on the ports of Emden and Wilhelmshaven, and against the sea-flooded Holland defense line. The British cut off Bremen and fought within a mile of Hamburg.

French and American forces closed on Stuttgart. The French broadened a corridor farther south within 14 miles of the Danube's headwaters. Americans of the Seventh Army battled 70 miles from Munich and pushed to within 27 miles of Ulm, north of the Nazis' southern mountain redoubt.

The hookup between the eastern and western Allies will be the result of co-ordinated planning with the juncture carefully planned to prevent confusion in the meshing of forces, supreme headquarters said.

The prisoner bag in the west rose to 913,237 for the first 20 days of April, but Lt. Gen. Walter Bedell Smith, Gen. Eisenhower's chief of staff, cautioned that the war may last considerably longer, with bitter fighting and heavy casualties.

Moscow dispatches early today indicated Soviet and American patrols were but 25 miles apart south of Berlin.

It was clear that the two forces now could meet almost at will near Dresden, perhaps within the next 24 to 48 hours.

A British correspondent with the U. S. Ninth Army declared the muffled thunder of Russian guns could be heard.

Two Ninth Army divisions opened a flank attack this morning west of Wittenberge, about midway between Berlin and Hamburg, and thrust halfway through Gatower Forest. The 84th Infantry, in a seven-mile gain, cleared Prezelle, 15 miles west of Wittenberge, on the Elbe, and the Fifth Armored gained up to three miles. Diesdorf and Abbendorf were recaptured, and infiltrated enemy forces were mopped up.

Gen. Eisenhower quickened his drives to crack open the areas where the Germans may make their last great stands—the northern port belt and the southern redoubt.

British armor plunged into the outskirts of Zeven, 20 miles northeast of Bremen, in a drive to encircle the river port, and also cut the main road five miles south of Zeven.

British troops were also a mile from the suburbs of Hamburg, second city of Germany, and now

Yanks, British Take Bologna

By LYNN HEINZERLING

ROME, April 21 (AP)—Bologna, first major objective of the all-out Allied offensive in Northern Italy, fell today to troops of the Fifth and Eighth armies.

Polish troops of the British Eighth Army and the U. S. 91st Division, commanded by Maj. Gen. William G. Livesay, and the 34th Division, under Maj. Gen. Charles Bolte, entered the historic Italian fortress city on the southern edge of the Po valley at the foot of the Apennines.

With Bologna captured the major German defense position south of the Po river was eliminated and the Nazis once again moved northward.

Field Marshal Alexander in a message to the victorious troops said:

"Let us keep driving forward until the last enemy soldier has been driven from Italy."

Gen. Clark, Allied ground commander, said his 15th Army group now stands "inside the gateway to the Po plain poised to destroy the Germans who continue to enslave and exploit Northern Italy."

U. S. Planes Trap Big SS Column

LEIPZIG, Germany, April 21 (AP)—U. S. Ninth Tactical Air Force planes yesterday caught and attacked a Lutwaffe-guarded column of 2000 SS troops moving west in 150 vehicles, between Luckau and Dahme, between Berlin and Leipzig.

Eleven P-38's bombed and strafed the column for half an hour, while four German planes assigned to guard it fought in the skies with four American covering planes. The German air protection indicated there might have been important persons in the convoy.

One U. S. ship and one MM-109 were shot down. The Air Force said 140 SS troops were killed on the ground, 23 trucks destroyed, 23 more damaged, two half-tracks and two horse-drawn vehicles destroyed and one armored vehicle damaged.

Churchill Puts V-E Day Near

BRISTOL, England, April 21 (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill said today that victory over Germany would be decided by Allied military commanders, who will notify their governments "when their task is done."

"I do not think it need be long delayed," he added.

He emphasized it would bring pause only for a moment—a moment of rejoicing and for "the purpose of regathering strength" to carry on the war against Japan.

Fleet of B-29s Batter 9 Key Jap Air Fields

By LEONARD MILLIMAN

Hundreds of Superforts raked nine airfields on southern Japan today in their third neutralizing raid this week on enemy bases used in the air-sea war which cost the Mikado 2569 planes and 100 ships in a month against 15 American warcraft.

Adm. Nimitz announced the one-sided naval score as tank-supported 10th Army troops cut wedges nearly a mile deep into the enemy's southern Okinawa defenses and broke up a fierce counter attack on nearby Ie island.

America's other on-to-Tokyo comander, Gen. MacArthur, announced the central Philippines have been swept clean of all organized Jap resistance, freeing 6,400,000 people and 33,000 square miles.

Yanks driving against the only remaining centers of resistance pushed 15 miles through the swamps of Mindanao in the south and captured three more members of the Filipino collaborationist government at Baguio on Northern Luzon.

Today's Superfortress strike was directed against nine major airfields on Kyushu Island, ranging from Kanoya, largest naval air station in Southern Japan, to the quaintly named town of Usa. Domei News Agency said the nine B-29 formations poured demolition bombs on the airstrips from 6 a. m. to 10.

Nimitz said that actually only 15 U. S. craft were sunk from March 18 to April 18. They included five destroyers (Halligan, Bush, Calhoun, Pringle, M. L. Abele); two minecraft (Emmons, Skylark); one destroyer-transport (Dickerson); two ammunition ships (Hobbs Victory, Logan Victory,) a gunboat and four landing craft.

My Day

Nation's Calmness In Crisis Praised

By ELEANOR ROOSEVELT

WASHINGTON, FRIDAY—There is always a certain emotional strain about the last time for anything. When you have lived 12 years in a house, even though you have always known that it belonged to the nation, you grow fond of the house itself, and fonder still of all the people connected with your life in that house.

Yesterday the President and Mrs. Truman lunched here with us and, from then on, I began to do "last things." At 4 o'clock, I greeted the members of my press conference for the last time in this house, though I hope as a co-worker to see many of them often in the future.

Afterwards I said good-by to a number of people, and then we sat down to our last dinner here. We were just a family party, including Mrs. Kermit Roosevelt, Miss Thompson, and our old friend, Henry Osthagen.

I HAVE ALWAYS looked out at the Washington monument from my bedroom window the last thing at night, and the little red light at the top of it has twinkled at me in friendly fashion.

That simple shaft, so tall and straight, has often made me feel during this war that, if Washington could be steadfast through Valley Forge, we could be steadfast today in spite of anxiety and sorrow.

Now, I have spent my last night in the White House. I have had my last breakfast on the sun porch. And all today, I shall be saying good-bye to different people who have been loyal and kind and have given all that they could for the success of my husband's administration or for the comfort and welfare of us all as a family.

Yet I cannot feel that it is good-bye for, when you are fond of people, you are sure to meet again.

I WONDER IF OTHERS have been thinking, as I have, of the rather remarkable way in which our people and our government have passed through this major period of change.

Ordinarily, when there is a change of administration, there is a period between election and inauguration during which the outgoing President and his family prepare for their departure, while the incoming President and his family prepare to assume their new responsibilities.

Never before has a sudden change of Presidents come about during a war. Yet, from the time that Mr. Truman, followed closely by Secretary of State Stettinius, walked into my sitting room and I told them of my husband's death, everything has moved in orderly fashion.

There was consternation and grief but, at the same time, courage and confidence in the ability of this country and its people to back new leaders and to carry through the objectives to which the people have pledged themselves.

That this attitude established itself so quickly is a tribute to President Truman, to the members of the Cabinet, and to the Congress. But above all, it is a tribute to the people as a whole and it reaffirms our confidence in the future.

Austen Lake Says:

Atrocity Tales Are Truthful

By AUSTEN LAKE

WITH 4TH ARMORED DIVISION, 3RD ARMY—LET NO AMERICAN IMAGINE THAT ATROCITY STORIES HE HAS READ ARE PROPAGANDA. THEY ARE STARK, NAKED, BRUTAL TRUTH.

This afternoon I went to a prison camp where 400 French officers had been freed amid conditions that would revolt self respecting pigs. There was one small filthy washroom, suitable for a cow stall.

Men were obliged to sleep on a straw bedded floor in a battered, leaky-roofed building. Their allotted space per man was one-half yard by six of cootie infested hay. They received five ounces of black bread and thin soup once a day. Open earth trenches were their only toilets, and every man wasted away by dysentery and malnutrition.

Among them was a former Bostonian named Erik Dornhjelm, cousin of Capt. Peter Reggio, the Longwood Davis Cup player, and whose grandmother was a Clark of Boston. Capt. Reggio, at the moment, is a short distance from here with the 51st Infantry Battalion of CCA, a sister column to our CCB.

I am trying to get word across the intervening miles to bring the cousins together.

Another of the French prisoners was Max Ingrand, well known painter, who did the interiors in the liner Normandy and some of the decorations for the French pavilion at the New York World's Fair. He sent "meilleurs sentiments" to architect Walter Downing Teague of New York.

Another French illustrator named Robert Toupe gave me a sheaf of drawings that he made during the years of his incarceration.

I am mailing them to the Boston American for translation and reproduction — a sordid yet humorous record of human misery.

Looking on as I talked with these thin, bandy-legged, bearded French, many of them pre-war intelligentsia of Paris, was an American soldier, Pvt. Melvin Kornbliet of 133 Ruthven st., Roxbury, a recently arrived assault gunner. His aunt is Celia Gochros of the Herald-Traveler staff.

It seemed fitting for men three-quarters starved and maltreated for years that they should have at least a suitable celebration meal on this day of liberation, so I found a local German burgomeister and asked him, through a German-speaking French officer, to deliver 2000 eggs and 100 chickens by 10 o'clock next day.

He demurred that he would have to have a written order.

Congress May Probe Atrocities

WASHINGTON, April 21 (AP)—Congress soon may send a group of Senators and House members to Europe to gather data for a report on Nazi atrocities.

Gen. Eisenhower has cabled Gen. George C. Marshall, Army chief of staff, an invitation for 12 Congressmen and 12 American editors to make personal inspections such as the British are making now.

Rep. Flood (D.) of Pennsylvania announced he would offer a resolution in Congress Monday to authorize a joint committee to leave at once for Germany.

Bull-Headed Nazi General Refuses to Read Message

By AUSTEN LAKE

WITH THE FOURTH ARMORED DIVISION—Life with Combat Command B is like living in a dream. There is a fevered quality to it—an ugly fantasy at times. Our armor is astride a thickly populated network of roads west of Chemnitz. Somewhere out yonder are Russians. You can hear their radio voices occasionally.

What is left of central Germany is between an inexorable squeeze of two enormous pincers. There is no hope for it, yet a militant minority of bull-headed Nazis continues a suicidal fight. We have implored them to halt this slaughter and havoc, but they are bent on self-destruction.

Only this morning our American command sent a civilian envoy with a message demanding surrender of the city, but the emissary has returned with the envelope unopened. The general refused to read it.

Such stiffnecked arrogance is costing the country many lives and much ruin, for as I write, our mobile artillery is arching high explosives on Chemnitz, like a lethal rain.

What I mean by the unreality of this existence is illustrated by the curious errand from which I have just returned—search for and arrest of a local Nazi official.

Truman Speech To Open Parley

WASHINGTON, April 21 (AP)—President Truman will broadcast from the White House Wednesday on a half-hour program between 7:30 and 8:00 p. m. (EWT) opening the World Security Conference at San Francisco.

The President's speech, to be heard on all networks, will be about 10 minutes long and will wind up the half-hour program.

Other speakers will be Secretary Stettinius, Mayor Roger D. Lapham of San Francisco, and Gov. Earl Warren of California.

The White House, in making this announcement today, said the President's speech has not yet been prepared.

Soviet Foreign Commissar V. M. Molotov was expected today for a Big Three conference with Secretary Stettinius and British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden.

Gravest problem to be discussed is Allied policy on Poland.

There was some hope the Russians would back down on their twice-presented demand that the present provisional government in Warsaw be invited to San Francisco. American diplomats were prepared to stand firm in their refusal to admit the Warsaw group until it is reorganized along the lines laid down at Yalta.

British-Russian-American talks on establishment of a new Polish government stalemated in Moscow several weeks ago and will be carried on here over the weekend, although there still is no indication of what can be expected.

Diplomats also were awaiting Molotov's arrival for release of a three-power warning to Germans on atrocities which Allied troops have found mounting in horror as the Nazis slide down to defeat.

It seems likely that Stettinius, Eden and Molotov will seek agreement on the timing and manner in which Russia will introduce its bid for seats for the White Russian and Ukrainian Soviet Republics in the assembly of the peace treaty.

The U. S. and Britain promised to support the Russian request at Yalta. Although there was hope that Moscow could be persuaded to drop this proposal at San Francisco, there is no indication as yet that the Kremlin has changed its mind.

Churchill Sees Open Door for Enemy Nations

By ALEX SINGLETON

BRISTOL, England, April 21 (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill declared today "a world organization which we must build and shall build will be free and open to all nations of the world."

Speaking only a few days days before the opening of the World Security Conference at San Francisco, Britain's wartime leader asserted that "nations must live in peace and justice with one another," thus envisaging the ultimate inclusion of even present enemy nations in a world peace organization.

He added significantly: "There must be always the necessary force to restrain aggression."

Churchill said that as far as Europe is concerned "we are coming to the end of the long journey," but added that the defeat of Japan will require "a new leap forward—a new lifting of soul and body."

His views were expressed under a new roof in the great fire-blackened hall of the University of Bristol, and the Prime Minister declared:

"We have no intention of encouraging any festivities of thanksgiving until we are assured from our military commanders that the task is so far complete that everyone may cheer.

"We have the Japanese to finish, and we stand absolutely with our great American ally, paying off at the other end of the world debts as heavy as ever were inflicted on us.

"I shall have to ask you, or whoever stands in my place and, whoever it may be, I shall support him—we shall have to ask you for a new leap forward, for a new lifting of the soul and body so that this second war shall also be brought to a conclusion altogether free from any doubt."

Concerning the past five years, which saw Britain rise from the fear of invasion to the heights of near-victory in Europe, Churchill said simply:

"I had an absolutely united nation behind me and had the support of colleagues as loyal as any government in Britain has ever had."

A Kiss for Truman

He Will Collect It After 44 Years

INDEPENDENCE, Mo., April 21 (AP)—President Harry S. Truman has a kiss coming from his former high school English teacher the next time they meet—the kiss that he didn't get on graduation day because it went only to the one in the class who had distinguished himself.

The boy on whom "Miss Tillie," as teacher Miss Matilda Brown was known to her students, bestowed the kiss back in 1901, was Charles G. Ross, the President's newly appointed press secretary.

Truman and Ross telephoned Miss Tillie from Washington Thursday night so she would be the first to know that her two former students would be working together again. They recalled she has kissed "Charlie" because he was the high-ranking student, with a promise to do the same for any other members of the class if they distinguished themselves.

"The next time I see you there'll be one President of the United States I can say I've kissed," Miss Tillie told President Truman. The twinkle in her eyes as she related the conversation belied the 75 years she grudgingly admitted.

When Charlie and Harry graduated, Miss Tillie predicted that if anyone in the class of 45 had a chance to be President it would be Harry Truman. She admits she was just joking and had no idea it would ever happen.

"I started out by calling him Mr. President," she related, "but I'm afraid I went right back to calling him Harry before we finished talking."

Ross took the phone part of the time but the President did most of the talking.

"I'm getting a great deal of fun out of Charlie calling me Mr. President now," he laughed.

Miss Tillie said that the President and Ross were especially close friends because of their mutual love of books.

"Harry always wanted to go to the library and read as many books as he could. I don't suppose there was a biography in that library, especially biographies of military leaders, that Harry hadn't read."

Mrs. Roosevelt Rests in N. Y. Flat

NEW YORK, April 21 (AP)—Secluded in her Washington sq. apartment, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt worked and rested today, in a privacy she seldom experienced as the wife of a President.

She planned to leave tomorrow for a six-weeks' stay in the Roosevelt home at Hyde Park, N. Y., to which 20 truckloads of family belongings are being removed from the White House.

Arriving here from Washington last night, Mrs. Roosevelt had no further comment on her plans for the future.

"The story," she said, "is over."

Trumans Awaiting White House Repairs

WASHINGTON, April 21 (INS)—President Truman and his family will not take up their official residence in the White House for a week or two. Press Secretary Jonathan Daniels said today a certain amount of redecorating will be done before the Trumans move in.

The President will remain in Blair House across Pennsylvania ave. from the State Department.

N. E. Hit Worst As Meatless Sunday Looms

Many of the large Faneuil Hall markets closed today and those remaining open had little meat for sale as thousands flocked to the district in the vain hope of obtaining supplies for the week-end and Sunday dinner.

The same situation prevailed throughout the Greater Boston area and in most of New England, and householders faced a dismal prospect as Malcolm McCabe, secretary of the Mass. Retail Grocers' Ass'n, warned little relief from the acute shortage could be expected for several months.

Families who planned to avoid marketing problems by eating out tomorrow were offered little encouragement by John W. Stokes, president of the Massachusetts Restaurant Ass'n. He reported many restaurants are out of points until May 1 and others are so short they are unable to buy meat even when a little is available.

"We have little meat and not enough red points to buy fats and oils to cook fish," Stokes said. "Red point allotments are so low most restaurants can use only a third of a ration point for each meal served."

Asserting there is less meat available now than ever before, McCabe reported New England is worse hit then any other part of the country, with beef supplies only 25 per cent of what they were at this time last year, pork 10 per cent, and no hams, shoulders or pork loins available.

"The supply of beef is spread so thin it can't begin to meet demands," McCabe added. "Pork, poultry and fish are all so short that beef has to carry the entire load. Even cold cuts are short because of the lack of lower cuts of meat with which to make them."

Unable to accommodate customers, meat dealers expressed hope the Congressional committee studying the food situation might find some solution to the problem. The committee, headed by Rep. Anderson of New Mexico, will hold hearings here Monday and Tuesday.

Cambridge Sets Bike Listing Deadline

Youthful Cambridge bicycle owners thronged police headquarters today to register and obtain license plates for their bikes in response to a warning by Chief Timothy F. Leahy of a Monday registration deadline.

Chief Leahy set the deadline in an effort to obtain registrations in order to reduce the number of bicycle thefts. The registration and licensing of bicycles was ordered in Cambridge by the City Council in 1941 but has never been enforced.

Hero Burned, Score Saved in E. Boston

Almost 50 persons were rescued or fled to safety and an additional score were forced from their homes by smoke today as a two-alarm fire spread through five Maverick sq., East Boston, dwellings and business buildings, causing an estimated $7500 in damage.

At least six families, whose homes were so badly damaged by the blaze as to be uninhabitable, faced the prospect of finding temporary quarters in an area already affected seriously by a housing shortage.

The blaze was believed by Dist. Chief Jeremiah Crowley to have started from spontaneous combustion in a barber shop and spread rapidly through the thickly congested buildings before firemen managed to bring it under control.

Servicemen, police and a civilian led in the rescue work, rushing into the burning tenements and assisting women and children to the street. Twenty-three children and 24 adults were assisted from the five buildings and 20 more fled from adjoining dwellings to escape smoke.

Thomas Powers, a war worker of Everett st., and Patrolman Paul Sances assisted Mrs. Sebastian Vasquez and her five children from their second floor home in Bremen pl. after the fire spread there. Powers suffered a bad burn of the left hand when he knocked loose a blazing wire to prevent further spread of the flames.

Mrs. Lena Encerto and her two-weeks-old son, Robert, were assisted to safety by S-Sgt. Louis Milano, who ran into the burning building at 27 Maverick sq. Other women and children were aided by CGM Dominic Guarfato, USN.

Hot air explosions in the burning buildings sent glass crashing from windows into the square but no one was hurt. Traffic in the square was tied up completely by fire apparatus and hose lines.

Dist. Chief Crowley said the fire spread from the barber shop in a three-story building at 21 Maverick sq. to the adjoining four-story building at 27 and in the opposite direction to a tailor's one-story shop at 19 and charred part of the three story wooden bulding at 15.

Germans Stripped, Beat Ex-Bay State Countess

By HAL BOYLE

LEIPZIG, Germany, April 21 (AP)—Attractive, American-born Countess Henry de Mauduit, 45, liberated after 22 months in six jails and camps, said today she once "had to undress completely" while German guards searched her.

Born Roberta Laurie of Stoughton, Mass., the blue-eyed prematurely gray woman said she was seized by the Gestapo for concealing shot down Allied fliers in a secret double floor of her Brittany chateau.

She told how she hid in a typhoid ward to escape being marched off by the Nazis from suburban Schoenefeld barracks with 6000 other women and political prisoners as the Americans approached Leipzig.

All the women worked 12 hours daily at the dangerous task of loading artillery shells in the great Hasag munitions plant.

When first arrested, she said, "they beat me five times in six months while I was wearing nothing but my night clothes."

"Don't ever tell me women talk," she said, relating how she had been in the main women's camp north of Berlin with "80,000 women from all over Europe," some of whom were held under water until they drowned during third-degree questioning. "I don't remember any woman who talked."

The slim, svelt countess, married 17 years ago in Paris to the Count de Mauduit, said the gestapo at first fed her on bread and water for 35 days at Rennes prison, but she failed to crack.

"It is okay with me, boys," she said she told them, "I have been trying for years to get thin but I never had the courage to stick to a diet before."

The countess was arrested June 12, 1943, at her chateau at Bourg Blanc near Plourivo and the north Breton port of Paimpol, where she had unique hostess problems after her husband escaped to England in 1941 to join Gen. De Gaulle.

"At one time I had 19 American and British airmen living between the double floor in our chateau the same evening I was entertaining for dinner the German army engineer in control of the Brittany coastal defenses."

She was concealing five American aviators the day she was arrested, when "100 Gestapo agents came to my chateau without warning and searched it from basement to attic and did not find them. But someone must have tipped them off that I was helping shot down fliers get away, because they arrested me anyway."

The Gestapo's lack of positive proof, however, may have saved her from the death penalty imposed for harboring Allied airmen. After being held in three French prisons, she was transferred in April, 1944, to the first of three concentration camps she saw in Germany.

When the Americans arrived in Leipzig the first soldier she saw was Pvt. Eddie Miller, New York city, of the 69th Division.

"He was a good boy," she laughed. "He gave me this dollar bill as a souvenir because he said no American ever should be without one." She was wearing it in the lapel of her striped prison coat.

The countess told her story to the military government in Leipzig to which the soldiers immediately took her. Then she said: "I guess I had better be getting back to my prison. The other girls will be worrying about me."

Beaten Countess Former Designer for Hub Store

Countess de Mauduit is the former Betty Laurie of Stoughton and Mansfield, where she was once a telephone operator. She met the Count in Paris after she became a fashion designer for a Boston department store.

She lived in East Africa with the Count and founded a school for the natives. Her accomplishment earned her the gratitude of the French government, which rewarded her with a medal.

During the Nazi blitz of 1940 she turned over her castle, Chateau du Bourblanc, to the government for a recuperation hospital for wounded soldiers.

COUNTESS de MAUDUIT
Liberated in Leipzig

Robert Laurie of Stoughton, the Countess' brother, said he had not heard directly from her since the German invasion of France in 1940. He said he learned indirectly she had been hiding American fliers and that the Nazis took her prisoner when they discovered it.

Count de Mauduit joined the De-Gaulle forces early in 1941 when he was forced to leave the Countess. He served in Africa and is now believed on his way to his wife's side. They were married more than 20 years ago.

Besides Robert, the Countess has two other brothers, John of Falmouth, and William of Concord, N. H.; and two sisters, Mrs. Irving Hodges of West st., Attleboro, and Mrs. Jessie Marden of Stoughton.

Clare Luce Sees Horror Camp

By THOBURN WIANT

WEIMAR, GERMANY, April 21 (AP)—Republican Reps. Clare Boothe Luce, Connecticut, John Kunkel, Pennsylvania, and Leonard Hall, New York, viewed the horrors of Buchenwald concentration camp today along with 10 members of Britain's parliament. The visits of the two parties of legislators coincided by accident.

Mrs. Luce saw stacks of bodies of Buchenwald's victims and declared:

"The most important thing to remember is that this could happen to us in 20 years.

"Only a few years ago, some were talking about there being good German people. After seeing this, one wonders whether there is good in any German people."

Among the emaciated internees was a 6½-year-old boy who had been imprisoned 2½ years.

"He was picked up in Paris because he was out after the curfew," Mrs. Luce said. "No one wants to believe these things, but it is important that people know they're true."

She asked several of the former prisoners what should be done with Germans responsible for the atrocities, and they replied:

"The same as they did to us."

"That's no answer," Mrs. Luce told newsmen, but she did not amplify.

Hub Nurse Held In Break, Thefts

Carrying two shopping bags, police said contained burglary loot, Mrs. Elaine R. McMullin, 47, of Shawmut ave., South End, a nurse, was arrested today less than 30 minutes after a Roxbury man reported his home had been ransacked.

Arraigned in Roxbury court on a breaking and entering and larceny charge, Mrs. McMullin pleaded not guilty and Judge Frankland W. L. Miles continued the case to April 27 and held her in $1000 bonds.

Patrolmen Lawrence Connelly and John Bastashy arrested Mrs. McMullin after Louis Rich of Amory st. discovered his home had been entered.

2 Hub Airlines Delay Opening

Opening of two new airlines in Boston, scheduled to begin service May 1, was ordered postponed today i na surprise order by the Civil Aeronautics Board.

The sudden order, reported as a war necessity due to need of straightening out bottlenecks in air service in the west, will prevent the United Air Lines and the Transcontinental & Western Air from opening their scheduled service here.

Northeast Airlines, which is scheduled to start a non-stop Boston to New York service May 1, is not affected by the order and will go ahead with its plans.

The order probably will interrupt elaborate plans for Aviation Week in Boston.

dered a captain to hunt the man down.

I have never known two more genteel characters socially, or such homicidal people professionally, as this matched pair of colonels who might have stepped bodily out of Ernest Hemingway fiction. As the only correspondent with CCB, I have been granted free run of the area.

The oddity of our quest was that Cohen didn't know the name or residence of the Nazi. So we went to the central square of a town, and asked some liberated prisoners if they knew his official name. They did. The only trouble was that each of five men named five different leaders.

Presently a wizened man, sized like a horse jockey, asked in excellent English if he could be of any service. He said he was a former resident of Massachusetts.

I do not report his name here, lest the Nazis mark him for revenge, but he said, with a dead pan expression that never changed, he knew the Nazi official's name. Yes, it would be a pleasure to show where he lived, because this man was a bad character who had caused much suffering.

He went in our machine-gun-mounted jeep to a large house on the outskirts, and we knocked at the door, where an unshaven, shirt-sleeved character appeared.

"That is the man," said our guide. It was.

There was a pistol of the type given to Nazi officials lying on his table. Plainly the man was preparing to make hasty flight.

He had a half packed knapsack of travel essentials. There were several packs of American cigarets among his effects. He said "somebody in town" had given them to him, but it was clear that he had obtained them from a batch of Red Cross parcels diverted from the use of Allied prisoners to the local German population.

In fact, only this morning Col. Cohen issued rigid orders that the contents of these parcels must be rounded up and returned by the Germans by nightfall, under heavy penalty. They came in, some intact and some partly consumed.

Our particular Nazi said he had just burned his party uniform. Why? He no longer headed the party. He "had been misled by higher Nazi politicians."

Could he step into the other room and bid his wife farewell?

"No," said the captain. "Say your goodbyes here, and come quickly."

It was the usual Nazi whimper, a man who "had been forced" to do party bidding for fear of his life—one who hated Hitler at heart. We have heard it hundreds of times.

"What will you do to me?" he kept asking, in a thin voice. The captain replied that if he had his personal druthers he would shoot him on the spot, but the American government required all accused war criminals to have a fair trial. He would get justice.

The man's face brightened. The last we saw of this official was when he was delivered to American MPs and herded into a bull pen with other civilians and soldier prisoners.

I report faithfully that I never dreamed Hitler could scrape the bottom of his manpower barrel to the very dregs.

There was a batch of uniformed schoolboys who must have ranged from 12 to 15 years—pink-checked midgets, wearing the insignia of snipers and anti-tank fighters.

They were types that one felt like spanking and sending home with a curt lecture. But these were youths who had ambushed our columns, killing and wounding our men as doughtily as any German veterans.

Compared with the gaunt riff-raff of older men, some of them grandfathers, they were far more dangerous.

There was also a group of 30-odd uniformed girls. Some were tearful, some hard-eyed and belligerent—ack ack helpers, who manned anti-aircraft guns.

None had any semblance to Hitler's master race theory, as ordinary a rabble of commonplace folks as one could imagine, and always the result of their interrogation by German-speaking GIs was the same—they had hated Hitler but were forced to do his will.

Yet these are people who performed Hitler's bidding with extra enthusiasm.

Gloria, Stokowski Vanish After Her Reno Divorce

RENO, Nev., April 21 (AP)—Newly divorced Gloria Vanderbilt was believed today to be en route to Beverly Hills, Cal. The dark-haired heiress and silvery-maned Leopold Stokowski both disapeared from Reno less than six hours after her divorce yesterday from Pasquale (Pat) De Cicco, Hollywood actors' agent.

Originally plans had been made for Miss Vanderbilt, who was granted the right to resume her maiden name, Stokowski, Arthur Allen, manager of the hotel where Gloria stayed, and Eleanor Marcus, Gloria's close friend, to spend the night at an inn in the high Sierras.

Stokowski was not at the divorce hearing and calls to the Lake Tahoe lodge, where the 58-year-old orchestra conductor has been staying, failed to elicit information. His physician refused to answer questions as to whether an attack of neuritis had cleared up.

Miss Vanderbilt also refused to answer questions as to whether she would wed Stokowski, and adding to the mystery of her plans, returned ration coupons for 45 gallons of gasoline which she had obtained for driving to Beverly Hills. Instead, she made reservations for a Saturday night train to Los Angeles.

Haverhill Links River Death of Woman, Man

HAVERHILL, April 21 (AP)—The bodies of an unidentified man and woman, whom a medical examiner said died about the same time, were found six miles apart in the Merrimack river in the past 24 hours, police reported today.

A state detective said there was a possibility there was some "tieup" in the deaths. The bodies had been in the water a long time.

Medical Examiner Leroy T. Stokes, who performed an autopsy on the man's body with Dr. Alan Moritz, professor of legal medicine at Harvard, said the man had suffered a head injury, but it was not determined whether it was caused by a blow or a fall. There was a small sum of money in his pockets.

The body was discovered in the river at Merrimacport yesterday by William Herman, 12, of Boston's Charlestown District, spending the day at his family's summer home.

The woman's body, observed in the river by an undertaker, who summoned police, was taken from the stream near the Crescent Yacht Club. An autopsy will be performed.

SHOULD MANAGEMENT BE UNIONIZED?

A Statement by General Motors

THE National Labor Relations Board has ordered a bargaining election among the foremen and other supervisory groups of a Detroit automobile company.

This company is not a part of General Motors, but we are concerned with the principles involved.

This confusing action by the Board means that it is sanctioning and promoting the unionization of management personnel, in spite of the fact that the National Labor Relations Act includes as an employer "... any person acting in the interests of an employer directly or indirectly."

We are sure that Congress did not intend to approve unionization of management when it passed the Act.

The results if applied throughout industry would be bad for the management groups involved, bad for industry, bad for labor, bad for America.

Bad for Foremen

We think it would be bad for foremen if American industry should be compelled to make a change in its proven type of organization, which would unavoidably reduce the foreman's status, diminish his responsibility, authority and influence, decrease his opportunities for personal advancement.

In General Motors, foremen have always had important responsibilities and authority.

We have always guarded the status of our foremen, and have provided special training to improve their abilities, increase their efficiency and enhance their opportunities for promotion to even more important management positions. The great majority of General Motors' principal executives at one time were foremen.

We are convinced that it would be impossible for a foreman to follow both management and union leaderships at the same time, and under those conditions to carry on all his duties as they now exist. All elements of management must have a common objective.

It would obviously be impossible, for instance, for him as a fellow unionist with those under him, to perform his functions which relate to their working conditions, wages, promotions and assignments on the unbiased basis which is essential to good management.

Bad for Industry

From our experience both before and during the war, we are certain that the accepted American method of spreading managerial authority and responsibility among foremen—so that management is in close, direct contact with comparatively small groups of workmen—is the best and only sound method of handling day-to-day relations with the thousands of employes engaged in modern mass production.

Anything which would require a change in this set-up would interfere with employer-employe relations and with production.

For example, there have been many strikes in war production plants, particularly in Michigan. Charges have been made that workmen have been loafing in plants engaged in war production and that they are being paid high wages for not working. We are conscious that the public feels that there must be something wrong. The attempt to tear down the position and authority of foremen and to unionize members of management is importantly contributing to this condition.

THE POSITION OF FOREMEN IN GENERAL MOTORS

In General Motors, foremen are the MANAGERS of their departments. They participate in establishing management policies in both production and personnel matters. They have full authority to approve or disapprove the hiring, to supervise the work, and to make work assignments of the employes under their supervision. They initiate wage increases, transfers and promotions. They are directly responsible for the efficiency and safety of their group. They have full authority when necessary to take immediate, appropriate disciplinary action for violation of shop rules, and other improper conduct of their employes. They are the first point of management contact and make the first management decision on all matters relating to the employes under their direction.

Bad for Labor

As a matter of fact, the close-contact method is about the only way that management and labor can work harmoniously together in large organizations.

Much is said these days about cooperation. It would be a serious handicap to any hopes for teamwork and the pursuit of common interests, if anything were done to remove this facility for knowing and understanding each other.

It is our firm, sincere belief that loss of this close contact would make harmonious relations between management and labor almost impossible and would interfere with practical collective bargaining.

Bad for America

The removal of foremen from their present position as a vital, integral part of management would require reorganization of factory management on a basis far more complicated and decidedly less effective. Necessary factory discipline would suffer, worker efficiency would be impaired.

We believe the effect on you—on the public as a whole—would be very real.

It would interfere with the war effort.

It would make war materials cost more.

It would slow up postwar reconversion to civilian production.

It would delay adequate postwar output of cars, refrigerators, ranges, furniture—all the things people need so much and have waited for so long.

Finally—and, in the long run, perhaps most important of all—it would so increase production costs as to boost prices and the cost of living, and make the problem of reasonably full employment much more difficult.

Action Called For

When people have as deep a conviction about anything as we have about unionizing management, they ought to do something about it.

If the meaning of the National Labor Relations Act can be so confused as to promote unionization of management—and thus impair the effectiveness of the American production system of which we are all so proud—then the meaning ought to be cleared up.

General Motors believes—and hopes others will feel the same—that it is a patriotic duty, a duty to the foremen, to industry, to labor, and to the public as a whole—to oppose the unionization of management by every proper and lawful means.

That is our intention.

GIs Veto Plan For Frisco Seat

PARIS, April 21 (AP)—The Army newspaper, Stars and Stripes, today vetoed a suggestion by Sen. Magnuson (D.) of Washington, that it select a combat soldier to represent the GI's at the World Security Conference in San Francisco.

"The typical GI . . . would be a two-headed calf at a world conference for dignified study of a confusing situation," the newspaper said, adding that the soldier would be wined, dined and flattered but would be completely bewildered by the complexity of the problems to be examined.

America's eight trained delegates are competent to represent soldier opinion as well as the rest of the nation, the paper said, "and that's good enough for us."

along the outskirts of Berlin as a violent tank battle with the Russians making use of planes to disperse German armored formations.

An earlier German broadcast said that 3,000,000 persons still were in fire-blackened Berlin "awaiting the battle."

The announcement of the shelling of the German capital by Russian artillery was made by the German Transocean agency.

By enemy account these are the five key points of the suburban fighting:

BERNAU — Virtually at the northeastern city boundary just outside the Ring autobahn (superhighway), encircling the capital and 14 miles from the heart of the city.

FUERSTENWALDE—12 miles southeast on the Frankfurt railway.

KOENIGS - WUSTERHAUSEN —Three miles from the southeastern boundary.

ZOSSEN—About 10 miles south on the main railway to Saxony.

Describing the situation in the southeastern suburbs as "most critical," Transocean said:

"The Russians have broken through between Cottbus and Bautzen and enemy spearheads have reached Koenigs-Wusterhausen, where they were halted. Another thrust is being made in the direction of Zossen."

The German radio said a decree had been issued in the doomed capital requiring all men and women unable to reach customary places of work because of the curtailment of transportation to report immediately and build anti-tank obstacles and dig trenches.

"Barricades are already blocking many streets of the town and are being strengthened and supplemented continuously," the broadcast said.

Next of kin of Army casualties were warned by the War Department today to guard against promotional schemes in which published Army casualty lists are used for fraudulent exploitation.

The most common scheme brought to the attention of the War Department has been writing to next of kin for further information on soldiers listed as casualties, informing them the soldier is to be included in a "Hall of Fame" or "Hero Memorial Book."

In all cases, families are requested to make cash deposits in advance to assure that the soldier is given special attention in the ficticious venture.

Vigorous action already has been taken, and criminal prosecution of some offenders has resulted.

Fuel Oil Supply To Remain Same

WASHINGTON, April 21 (INS) —The OPA announced that the supply of fuel oil for household heating next winter will be about the same or slightly less than last winter and that fuel oil rationing will remain unchanged.

The supply of kerosene for next winter is expected to be even smaller than last, OPA added.

The agency said fuel oil rations will be issued again this year before the beginning of the new heating season—Sept. 1, 1945, through Aug. 31, 1946—to permit householders to receive oil during the summer.

All currently valid period and fixed-value fuel coupons will expire for consumer use Aug. 31.

La moda Americana... Have a Coke

(THE AMERICAN WAY)

...an American custom as seen in Italy

People overseas are impressed by the American fighting man's friendliness among his fellows. They see his home-ways and customs—his good humor. Have a Coke they hear him say to his buddies, and they begin to understand America. Yes, the pause that refreshes with ice-cold Coca-Cola speaks of the friendliness of Main Street and the family fireside.

Summer Hairdos By Stylists

LOOKS like short hair but actually it is six inches long . . . the new length designated by the American Hair Design Institute as the most dressable. The crown of sculptured curls to the nape gives the head a beautiful shape.

THE BANDANNA COIF which we believe will sweep the country this summer . . . and be the outdoor gal's greatest hair blessing. Endless possibilities for variations of the bandanna or scarf are afforded in this hairdo.

SIDESWEEP is a sophisticated hairdo for the sophisticated lady. Waved back from the sides to swirl in back, it swoops up at one side in sleek waves.

THE PAGE BOY hairdo in new dress is this criss-cross version.

THE SIX-INCH length sweeps into a sculptured updo with its smooth back and sculptured curls at sides and temples.

It's 6-Inch Hair Now

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE

TIME WAS when tightly curled, painfully frizzed hair was high style. This season it is deader than a door nail . . . and as stale as last week's loaf of bread. It isn't even smart to have a hairdo look as though it were carved out of stone. It isn't even smart to have the casual look . . . the fluffy look.

Both are out and smoothness is in . . . with strong emphasis on the clear-brow affect . . . a trend enhanced by the simplicity of the clothes silhouette . . . and, without question, by our envy of the lovely uncluttered hairdos of the tempting teen-agers.

Beauty marches on even in hair . . . you see. And the American Hair Design Institute, which has been directly responsible over the years for such successful vogues as the pompadour, the upsweep, the "little" coif, the basic coiffure . . . this week at a New York showing sponsored the American-look hairdo, featuring the "six-inch" length as the most dressable, most versatile hair length.

The six-inch hair length . . . that is six inches from the scalp out . . . has been decided upon as the most workable figure because . . . according to Mr. Leon, chief stylist of the Institute, it is just long enough to do anything under the sun. It can be made to look short or long . . . swept up or swooped down . . . it can be curled, waved, swirled . . . in short, any affect that is desired can be achieved with this length, he says.

All the coiffures you see pictured on the page have been developed with the six-inch hair length—with both variety and versatility of mode. The aide sweep . . . waved smoothly up at the sides to show a widow's peak . . . with height achieved at one side . . . has all ends turned smoothly under. This is a sleek, sophisticated style which the worldly woman, the ultra smart will love.

YOUTHFUL, WEARABLE

The contour hairdress . . . which looks much shorter than its six inches . . . is shaped to the head in a cap of soft, sculptured curls that makes it youthful, wearable and easy to manage. In the criss-cross page boy . . . we have a completely different treatment of the perennial page boy . . . we have the hair twisted in back so that it overlaps before being curled under . . . holding the page boy smoothly and securely in place.

The piece de resistance of the New York show was the bandanna coif. The bandanna . . . in some instances a scarf . . . in others a length of material cut on the bias . . . or a large handkerchief folded diagonnally . . . is used as an integral part of the coiffure, doing the two-fold job of anchoring the hair firmly and smoothly in place . . . while acting as a decorative costume accessory. Regardless of the summer breezes . . . your hair in this fashion will always look sleek and smooth. This should be a summer hair innovation of tremendous popularity.

We'll be glad to tell you where such hairdos may be had in Boston in salons featuring American Hair Design Institute hairdos . . . if you write us.

Wine Boosts Entree Treats

By MARTHA LEE

VEGETABLES are destined to be cast in the entree role more and more frequently this spring and summer as the nation faces a major shortage of fresh meat. Planning menus that are satisfying, tempting and nutritious around a vegetable entree is a task to challenge the ingenuity and good judgment of even the most experienced cook.

One of the best insurances against the menu doldrums that are sure to afflict the unprepared these days, is a good collection of meal-in-themselves vegetable entrees.

WITH WINE ADDED

Like meats, vegetables take on added goodness and menu importance when wine is used in their preparation. Anyone who has tasted hot potato salad prepared with white table wine, beets in port wine, or baked beans blessed with sherry wine will witness to the power of wine to dramatize the flavor of these foods.

When you've peeled and diced the potatoes for making salad, moisten them with a dry white wine. Then go on preparing the salad in your regular way as though nothing had happened—but you'll know that something has happened when you taste the salad.

It's the same with baked beans — you've never really tasted good baked beans 'till you've tried them with sherry wine. To a can of baked beans add 1 teaspoon of prepared mustard and ½ cup sherry. Heat in a saucepan, or brown in oven with a topping of bacon strips.

STUFFED VEGETABLES

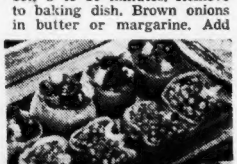
Tomatoes and green peppers are among the most satisfactory of vegetables to choose for vegetable entrees. They can be filled with a wide variety of savory mixtures—with or without the addition of a bit of meat for flavor.

Baked beans, spaghetti in tomato sauce, canned corned beef hash (if available) are a few of many excellent choices for filling green peppers. Tomatoes, too, take kindly to scores of fillings. The simplest of all is the bread filling. This can be varied to include a small amount of smoked sausage or slices of frankfurters. Any one of these fillings will be more savory if wine is used in its preparation.

STUFFED GREEN PEPPERS

4 green peppers
¼ small green onions
2 tbsp. butter or margarine
2 cups baked beans (or 2 cups corned beef hash)
½ cup any red table wine

Wash peppers. Cut in half lengthwise. Remove seeds. Plunge in boiling water. Parboil 5 to 10 minutes. Remove to baking dish. Brown onions in butter or margarine. Add beans and wine (or corned beef hash and wine) and simmer slowly until most of the wine is absorbed. Fill mixture into peppers. Bake in a moderate oven (350 deg. F.) for 20 minutes. Makes 4 servings.



Stuffed Peppers and Tomatoes

STUFFED TOMATOES

4 tomatoes
1 cup ½ inch bread cubes
6 tbsp. butter or margarine
3 small green onions, chopped
2 frankfurter, sliced thin
½ cup any red table wine

Remove slice from top of each tomato. Scoop out pulp and juice into saucepan. Arrange tomatoes in baking dish. Brown the bread cubes in 4 tablespoons of the butter or margarine. Remove bread croutons from frying pan. Brown onions and frankfurters in remaining 2 tablespoons butter or margarine. Add the wine and the tomato pulp and simmer slowly for 10 minutes. Add the croutons. Fill mixture into tomato cups. Bake in a moderate oven (350 deg. F.) for 20 minutes. Makes 4 servings.

TABLE SERVICE

Red table wine is the choice for the fillings suggested in today's versions of stuffed peppers and tomatoes. Serving glasses of this same kind of wine with the meal itself will give the ultimate touch of gracious hospitality — one that hosts and hostesses can provide even in these days of stress. And for all the charm that wine lends, it is as simple to serve as any beverage. One type of wine glass is correct for serving any wine.

LUCILE SIBLEY CHRISTMAS of Washington and Maj. William S. Brewster of Boston, whose engagement was announced this week, have already decided to be married June 2 in Washington.

The prospective groom's hometown friends who will be unable to go so far for the wedding will have an opportunity to extend their best wishes in person, nevertheless, for his parents, the Ellis Brewsters of Plymouth, are planning a sort of second wedding reception when the honeymooners come to the South Shore on their wedding trip.

Those who do journey to the capital for the wedding will witness an impressive military cere-

"THE HEARST PAPERS believe in the capitalistic system, so-called, which is the only practical economic system of proven worth and with adequate reward for merit."

W. R. Hearst
Publisher

THE above is from an editorial written by William Randolph Hearst on April 21, 1935, on the policy of the Hearst papers.

The so-called capitalistic system is the world-famous system of free enterprise.

The capitalistic-free-enterprise system has built up our business structure to be the most beneficent social structure in the world.

Our democratic capitalistic system has inspired our competitive business system because, depending on public approval, it is the foe of monopolies, state regimentation and political "squeeze-plays."

As Mr. Hearst says, it is "the only practical economic system."

Every advertiser who uses the Hearst papers knows that the papers which carry his advertising are backing the American system.

Every reader of a Hearst paper knows that his paper upholds him in his job as a free, independent American, working for a free, independent business.

And that is another reason why the Hearst newspapers are good newspapers for our readers and good newspapers for our advertisers.

LET'S SAVE OUR FORESTS

ACTIVE CAMPAIGNS are being conducted in many States, including our Massachusetts, for the enactment of adequate legislative programs for the conservation of forests which constitute our remaining and DIMINISHING timber resources, and for the restoration of denuded forest areas to full productivity.

This is encouraging and important, because the twin ravages of reckless and wasteful commercial lumbering operations and of fire have already seriously reduced the timber resources of the nation, and threaten to destroy them altogether.

Since some States have been more foresighted in this respect than others, it is urgently essential for the GOOD example of these alert lumber-producing States to be emulated by all States having valuable woodlands and for their sound experience to be utilized for the guidance and profit of the laggards.

The chief of the U. S. Forest Service, Mr. Lyle F. Watts, is both insistent and optimistic regarding this urgent necessity for adequate state conservation and reforestation.

"The trend of forest destruction and deterioration will not be checked," he wrote in a recent report, "until effective public control of cutting and related practices is applied throughout the country . . .

"A number of States, notably Maryland, Massachusetts, Minnesota, Oregon, New Mexico and Idaho, have already recognized this need by enacting legislation dealing with regulation of cutting practices.

"It is quite appropriate for the States to shoulder the responsibility for forest regulation within their borders, but such regulation should as a minimum comply with standards set up by Federal legislation.

"Because the Federal Government has a responsibility to the people as a whole that cannot be denied, I believe it should undertake the job of regulation in States that FAIL to enact or satisfactorily administer legislation meeting established Federal standards."

THE IMPLICATION in Mr. Watts' remarks is plain. He rejects the imputation that Federal regulation of forest practices has any connection with a movement to nationalize the forest industries.

He agrees that the responsibility for regulation is properly that of the States, but suggests that NEGLECT by the States will continue the present trend toward deterioration and destruction and compel the evolvement and universal enforcement of a Federal program.

The separate timberland states should and CAN meet this urgent responsibility.

Pennsylvania has had a comprehensive and efficient forestry program for thirty-six years, and has thus assured itself that its woodlands will never be exhausted but will flourish and be permanently productive.

Since 1941, Massachusetts has had a forest practices law requiring "the rehabilitation and protection of forest lands for the purpose of conserving water, preventing floods and soil erosion, improving the conditions for wild life and recreation, and providing a continuing and increasing supply of forest products for farm use and for the wood-using industries of the Commonwealth."

BUT UNLESS all of the major lumber-producing States, including California which is one of the ten largest timberland States in the Union, fulfill their responsibility and conserve their forests and provide for their reproductivity, national regulation is inevitable.

It has been often and truly said that the only way to make democracy work is to WORK AT IT. That admonition must be taken to heart in every American State having forest resources.

WHAT IS a cocktail? That is a question now causing a heated discussion between some of London's leading legal lights in a court in that city. The plaintiff claims he was sold a mixture called a cocktail but it was not a cocktail. Seems a cocktail has never been defined in a British court of law. Hence the aforementioned argument. In your opinion, what is a cocktail? Now don't go rushing toward the dictionary. Give your brain a little exercise. Write your definition down. If you get it right you don't have to send me a stogie. Anyway, my favorite cocktail is an old-fashioned.

BIRTH OF A GENIUS: A man of science recently claimed the marriage of a man of 45 and a woman of 24 is most likely to produce an unusually intelligent child. In fact, these ages, said he, are ideal for the birth of a genius. Anyway, Mozelle Britton Dinehart, widow of Allen, was 24 when she married and her husband was 45. Their son is now 6 years of age. This lad recently sat down at the piano and composed a musical number titled "Russian Cowboy," which will shortly be published. So the man of science aforementioned may have something. If you are 24 and want to be the mama of a genius, why not try to marry a man of 45?

HISTORICAL NOTE: A hundred years ago the average woman wore around 25 pounds of clothes and was, when all dolled up, very uncomfortable. Now, the fashionable women like Claudette Colbert wear about three pounds of clothes in the winter and one and a half pounds or less in the summer. History tells us it was the women of Holland who started revolutionizing feminine attire from the angle of comfort. The Dutch women organized a clothing reform league. They are said to have originated the idea of a dress all in one piece, the step-in and the slip.

". . . For we're sailing, for we're sailing, for we're sailing against England . . .!"

WASHINGTON SCENE

By GEORGE DIXON

WASHINGTON, April 20—Members of Congress must think twice, and preferably thrice, before they do the simplest, most commonplace thing.

This was brought home to me the other day when I called Speaker of the House Sam Rayburn. Somebody—I think it was old pal Barnee, the Shoreham maestro—told me that Sam had a highly-prized recipe for fried chicken.

Sam Rayburn

Now, you will admit, I hope, that fried chicken is not ordinarily considered controversial. You can go up to a man, even a foreign ambassador, and say "fried chicken!" without having him call upon the State Department for a formal apology—although he may think it is a little odd. Fried chicken is not even regarded as a causus belli—which is a diplomatic term meaning you are liable to get stout in the midriff if you eat too much of it cooked in deep fat.

I wanted the recipe to pass on to my clients, some of whom may get a chicken one of these days and wish to fry it.

So I called up the Speaker and speakered to him as follows:

"Listen, Sam, I was just talking to Barnee or some other glutton—or do I mean 'gourmet?' —and he told me you have a wonderful recipe for fried chicken."

"I certainly have," said the Squire of Bonham, Tex. "It is the finest recipe for fried chicken in Texas—which means the whole wide world."

★ ★ ★

I HAD no intention of letting Mr. Rayburn lure me into a debate on the supremacy of Texas, which is a Texas trick one should be wary of at all times. So I asked him if he would be kind enough to give me the recipe.

"No!" snapped Sam. "I positively will not!"

You have no idea what a shock this was because the Speaker, ordinarily, is one of the most amiable and obliging men on Capitol Hill.

"If I were to give you that recipe and you printed it in the paper I would never get another lick of work done this session," he said. "I would not be able to do anything but answer fried chicken mail.

"I am not exaggerating," continued the Speaker. "Many years ago, when I was not so experienced in Congress, I gave out a recipe for chili. Before the week was out I nearly went nuts.

"My office was waste-deep in letters—a surprising number from men—all concerned with my chili recipe.

"Virtually all the writers said they had better recipes and enclosed same, demanding that I try them and report back. I had to hire extra secretarial help, which I could ill afford, to clear up the chili recipe mess."

SPEAKER RAYBURN said that any member of Congress who lets himself get involved in a cooking controversy should have his head examined.

"Nearly every adult American, male and female, fancies himself or herself a great chef," he said. "That is why I will not give you my fried chicken recipe for publication. I'm too busy this session!"

WE GOT to discussing Senatorial feuds the other night and Majority Leader Alben W. Barkley said the ones today are nothing like they were in the old days for bitterness.

"Now and again we have a dispute in the Senate which tends to become a mite personal," he observed. "But it is always milksoppy mild compared with the blistering exchanges between Sen. John Randolph of Virginia and Henry Clay.

"They used to call each other the most atrocious things. Once Senator Randolph said that Henry Clay was so brilliant he 'shone like a decayed mackerel in the moonlight.'

"But Henry Clay got even a few days later. The Capitol vicinity was unpaved and on rainy days it became a morass.

"To keep the Senators from getting overmuddy a plank path was laid from the Capitol to the Peace Monument. It was just wide enough for one man, walking carefully.

"Clay came down the planking this rainy day and encountered Randolph coming up. One had to give way.

"Randolph glared and snapped:

"'I never step aside for a scoundrel!'

"Henry Clay gave him a benign smile.

"'I always do!' he said—and stepped aside!"

HOLLYWOOD, April 21 — Piano playing Oscar Levant is turning actor again. He admits that he has enough ham in him to enjoy a comedy turn and, believe me, he is the boy who can do it. Jack Warner has signed Oscar on a long-term contract; his first picture is to be "Silver Lining," the life of Marilyn Miller.

Alice Faye

Heretofore most of Oscar's acting talents have been devoted to playing himself. It was really his amusing scenes in "Rhapsody in Blue" that decided Jack Warner to offer him this contract. I suppose Oscar, who is a marvelous insulter (I know on account of he did a super job with me on the air), will be his insolently musical self in the Marilyn Miller musical.

ALICE FAYE pulled herself out of a sick bed to try on her clothes for "Fallen Angel." She was superstitious enough not to want to miss these first fittings. Today was her first appearance on the 20th Century-Fox lot in over a year. Otto Preminger met with her and Dana Andrews, who is her co-starring partner. Otto was particularly anxious to have Dana because of "Laura," and no wonder. The Andrews lad is hotter than a tamale ever since that movie. One of the finest individual moments in many a day was the scene when he walked around the supposedly dead Laura's apartment, falling in love with her.

COL. ZACH MILLER, who owned the Miller Brothers' wild west show and 115,000 acres in Oklahoma, was more than a name to Will Rogers, William S. Hart, Buck Jones and others who had their start with him. Theodore Roosevelt was constantly a visitor to the anow and now the old Colonel, who is still alive, is to be the hero in "101 Ranch," based on his wild west show. James S. Burkett has paid $35,000 to Jack De Witt for "101 Ranch." He wants John Wayne to play the Colonel, a character surrounded by plenty of real Wild West romance. The Burkett-Rosen combination is dickering with a major studio for release.

CALL IT IRONIC, but Tennessee Williams, who wrote the fabulously successful "The Glass Menagerie," was at M-G-M for six months without every writing a word. But that's not surprising—maybe he didn't get a good idea. His success, "The Glass Menagerie," was turned down by New York producers, who couldn't see it for dust, then he opened it in Chicago and it brought the beloved Laurette Taylor back with a bang. Maybe M-G-M now will turn around and buy "The Glass Menagerie," with Laurette and Tennessee. Marie Dressler was about Laurette's age when she had her greatest fame, and at this very same studio.

MAL ST. CLAIR tells me that he and "Broncho Billy" Anderson had an idea for a comic strip called "Broncho Billy," which isn't as surprising as it sounds because before Mal was a movie director he was a very good artist. "Some time ago we sent the idea on to Joe Connolly and he liked it so much he wrote me he wanted to see some of the finished strips with an eye toward syndicating them in the funny papers. His encouragement meant a lot," said Mal (didn't it to everyone?). Mal says he intends to bring into the "funnies" all the old characters such as "Alkali Ike" and others who were household words with Broncho Billy back in the days of Essanay.

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD COLLECTED AT RANDOM: Olivia De Havilland left town without seeing Major John Juston, although I happen to know that he telephoned her. But as far as Livvy is concerned the romance is over. Of course, a lady can always change her mind; Paulette Goddard's hair, now very blonde, is described as "moonbeam." Looks to me almost platinum, but it's becoming; Harriet Parsons is off for New York Monday to the opening of "Enchanted Cottage"—and is she a happy girl. Now will you believe my surprises when I tell you, Miss Parsons? Pat Smart has rented her house in Bel-Air for a fortune. She goes to Pebble Beach and the children to Florida for six weeks with their father. Pat and Anita Colby gave a farewell dinner dance before they closed their home.

PETER LORRE'S new book of poems is being privately printed. Not that they are naughty, but they are very sentimental and Peter is shy; word from New York says that Stella Unger is at the Alec Templeton home in Connecticut, where she and Alec are working on a Broadway musical. Remember they wrote "Cabbages and Kings" in joint authorship.

NEWS OF the deaths of J. V. Connolly and Ernie Pyle, coming in the same day within a few hours of each other, shocked everyone in the newspaper business. Both were greats of the Fourth Estate. Both were deeply admired and well loved.

Ernie was shy and reticent in public life and words came to him with difficulty except when he sat down to his typewriter, then the words flowed with beauty and understanding and Ernie's peculiar quality of gentleness.

Joe was friendly and jovial and quick of wit; he talked well and he laughed easily, and he laughed as easily with the barber or the bootblack as with the millionaire, the statesman or the archbishop. He had a brilliant mind, but it was the qualities of warmth and friendliness that stood out in his character. He was a sharp executive, but he never seemed sharp. He accomplished prodigious amounts of work, yet I never saw him appear rushed or testy or excited. He always seemed to have time for everybody.

Joe was deeply religious and the little church near the Mirror Building saw him frequently kneeling in a quiet pew on his way to the office, or on his way home. When he spoke, as he often did on subjects of piety and devotion, he was eloquent.

Joe was a fine friend, not to just a few, but to many. I think my father must be very sad in Paris today. He loved Joe Connolly as a dear and honorable brother.

Boston After Dark

EXCLUSIVE: WHILE THE OPA SLEEPS—housewives and butcher-shops in the Dorchester-Mattapan district are doing their merged part in inducing inflation of the poultry market . . . The result is that OPA prices on chicken and fowl have gone by the board, and prices for poultry these nights are undergoing a spirited up-bidding so that 75 cents a pound for chicken is not unusual, and prices of 65 cents a pound—some 20 cents higher than ceiling prices—are the regular thing.

★ ★ ★

IT HAPPENS THIS WAY . . . The racketeering poultry dealers, checkmated in the daytime by vigilance of a handful of OPA inspectors, maintain no more than a pretense of doing business in the scarce poultry . . . At night (at 10 o'clock) the stores come to life . . . The business is conducted openly until as late as 2 a. m., and customers are so plentiful that they are admitted singly or in pairs, after the fashion of the "blind pigs" of early prohibition days . . . Housewives bid animatedly for the precious poultry, and the black-market shops have been doing a landoffice business.

★ ★ ★

THE OPA IN BOSTON is not the target, incidentally, of these few paragraphs . . . Sincere efforts have been made to halt the illicit traffic in poultry, with the state co-operating through the seizure of trucks loaded with black-market fowl and chickens on the highways . . . But OPA inspectors are not expected to work around the clock . . . They have to sleep, and most of them are over-worked . . . The situation needs remedial action, however . . . Word of the illicit traffic has spread like wildfire to adjoining communities, and unless the racket is halted soon it will add a lowering of morale and dissatisfaction to the inflationary effect already set in motion in one very essential commodity.

★ ★ ★

AUTO THIEVES have been concentrating on parking-spaces adjacent to, or neighboring, several of the more important nightclubs . . . A quartet of young men in caps and sweaters stole a car from such a parking lot the other night while the owner was being summoned over the nightclub's microphone, in order that he might move his car so that another guest could move his automobile . . . One lucky circumstance which favored the thieves was that the wife of the first car-owner became cold and sought the warmer sanctuary of the nightclub after her husband had asked her to remain in the car while he returned to buy a package of cigarets.

★ ★ ★

BUT THE LADS who "clouted" the car did their job, including breaking a door-lock, within three minutes . . . (From now on, an officer has been stationed on the roof of that particular nightclub to spot aspiring auto thieves.)

★ ★ ★

THE RACKET flourishes because of the scarcity of autoparts . . . "Stripping" a car nets thieves several hundred dollars, and occasionally they can get away with the vehicle intact . . . Unscrupulous dealers are able to pack a stolen automobile on top of one of the many auto-conveyors plying between New England States and parts south and west . . . Only occasionally are these auto-loads inspected beyond Massachusetts . . . State police are interested chiefly in violators of traffic rules, and the Department of Utilities—undermanned and handicaped by the rivalry between the two State services - can't possibly keep track of the truck convoys moving south and west from Boston on the main routes to New York.

ONE STATE cop is becoming known as the "Scourge of the Road" to autoists who are forced by business to frequent roads in the western part of the state . . . His record of arrests is startling . . . But fellow-officers in the state constabulary resent his arbitrary "zeal" because his record makes their own records unconvincing . . . They explain the officer's uncompromising attitude and curtness to motorists on a promotion which didn't come true . . . And his assignment to the Brookfield barracks—at the insufficient pay of a state policeman—when his home is in far-off Haverhill . . . It is almost impossible to buy white shirts, of good material, in Boston or in New York . . . "White on white," as shorts with small stitching designs are known to the trade, are off the market.

Arrest of Boy Causes Suicides

LAWRENCE, Kan., April 21 (AP)—Suicides of a 15-year-old schoolboy and his mother were attributed today to the arrest of the son on a speeding charge.

Mrs. Edna Ellis, 46, died of a self-inflicted bullet wound a few hours after her son Otto was found dead of carbon monoxide fumes in a locked garage.

Coroner C. B. Rumsey, who pronounced both deaths suicides, said Otto was arrested for speeding and officers called his mother. The boy failed to appear at home and patrolmen broke into his garage and found him dead. The motor of his automobile still was running.

Mrs. Ellis shot herself, Rumsey said, shortly after learning of her son's death

Rockets Get Big Fort Up Quicker

A U. S. BOMBER BASE IN ENGLAND, April 21 (AP)—Aided by rockets, Capt. Richard C. Holub of Grass Valley, Cal., took a Flying Fortress off the ground recently after a run of only 372 feet. The normal takeoff requires 800 or 900 feet. Gen. Carl Spaatz saw the experiment.

Six rockets of the type used by British navy planes were mounted under each wing. Holub conceived the idea. His only passenger was M-Sgt. Raymond L. Kirkpatrick of Eufaula, Okla. The plane used in the experiment was one which had been forced to land short of its base because of flak damage. Long strips of steel matting on the ploughed field served as a runway.

GIs Kill Nazi General As Yank Is Slain

WITH THE U. S. FIRST ARMY IN GERMANY, April 21 (AP)—American tankmen shot to death a high ranking German general yesterday in the Ruhr pocket when he and his men ran from a house and killed a U. S. soldier with a machine pistol.

The Americans were making a routine patrol south of Schmallenberg when eight Germans burst out of the house and fired on them. A tankman opened fire with a machine-gun. Besides the American and the German general, two of the general's men were killed and two were wounded. Three escaped.

To Find Diamond

CHICAGO, April 21 (AP)—After Mrs. Shirley Bernstein lost a diamond ring in a Loop theater, attendants turned up the house lights full blast to help the search.

Detective James Traut stepped in. "You've got to give diamonds the right kind of light," he said, dousing all the lights and using his flashlight. After a few minutes search, the faint ray spotted the ring.

"Moonlight is still better," commented Traut.

Philippine Rule Hits U. S. Snag

WASHINGTON, April 21 (AP)—Appointment of a new High Commissioner to the Philippines may be delayed indefinitely by an apparent inability to reconcile State, War and Interior Department differences.

An official in position to know but who doesn't want to be quoted by name said this is the picture:

1. Interior Secretary Ickes wants a High Commissioner sent to the islands to study economic conditions and make reports on which trade preferences for the commonwealth would be based.

2. The State Department wants assurance that one of its men will be named High Commissioner and become American ambassador at Manila when the Philippines attain independence.

3. The War Department does not favor the naming of a High Commissioner, a view reportedly held by Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

British Ambassador To Spain Agreed On

MADRID, April 21 (AP)—The Spanish government agreed today to Victor Mallet as British ambassador to Spain. The post has been vacant since departure of Lord Templewood, formerly Sir Samuel Hoare, Dec. 13. Mallet's last diplomatic post was as British minister to Sweden.

New Song-Cycle Premiere May 5

Composers Leonard Bernstein and Aaron Copeland are taking to France, as part of the OWI program for introducing modern American music to the French people, a major portion of the brilliant song-cycle, "The Children," with music by Theodore Chanler and words by Leonard Feeney.

"The Children," hailed by noted music critics as the most brilliant and exhilerating composition by a modern American composer, is to have its premiere at the Hotel Commander, Cambridge, on Saturday, May 5, at 3 p. m. It will be repeated on three successive Sundays at the Hotel Commander at 3 p. m.

The charming song-cycle is being presented under auspices of St. Benedict Center of Cambridge with an adult cast selected from the Center. The chorus is composed of children from the Home for Detitute Catholic Children.

The sketches which accompany the pieces have all been written by Father Feeney, S. J., director of the Center and Mr. Chanler's collaborator.

'Kiss and Tell' Stays Third Week

"Kiss and Tell," George Abbott's comedy hit at the Plymouth, is to be held over a third week because of the unprecedented demand for tickets. Tickets are now on sale for the additional week.

* * *

Stanley Bell, last seen here as the butler in "Dinner for Three," is now co-starring with Skeets Gallagher in the comedy farce success at the Shubert, "Good Night, Ladies." He replaces John Hubbard, film star, who has reported for induction.

Seats go on sale on Monday for "Memphis Bound," the new musical comedy starring Bill Robinson which opens a 10-day engagement at the Colonial Theater on Thursday evening, May 3. John Wildberg is presenting this Vinton Freedley production, which has a book of Albert Barker and Sally Benson and a score by Don Walker and Clay Warnick.

Jazz Festival at Symphony

Eddie Condon, who held a card in the musicians' union and was playing banjo and guitar with the already famous Bix Beiderbecke when he was 15, brings his band of the world's hottest musicians to Symphony Hall tomorrow at 8:30 direct from Carnegie Hall.

Bobby Hackett, considered by critics as the greatest living jazz soloist, heads the list of performers. The other two cornetists are Billy Butterfield and Buck Clayton. Others in the band are Sidney Bechet, Joe Dixon and Joe Marsala, clarinetists; Benny Morton and Brad Gowans, trombonists; Sidney Catlet and Kansas Fields, drummers; Jack Lesberg and Pops Foster, contra-bassists, and Dick Cary, Sam Price and James P. Johnson, pianists.

Music by George Gershwin, Thomas "Fats" Waller and other contemporary jazz composers will be played. In the cloing moments of the concert, Condon will conduct a jam session n which all of the musicians will participate. Tickets are still available at Symphony Hall.

Joe Cronin's Career as Active Player Is Ended

By JACK CONWAY

THE FRACTURED right leg suffered by Joe Cronin while sliding into second base in a game against the Yanks is expected to end his career as an active ball player. At the age of 39 it is time that the popular Sox leader turned over the task of actual competition to younger men. Joe planned to retire as a regular player when Johnny Pesky made good with the Sox. The war then came along, Pesky entered service and Cronin found himself back in the lineup trying to do a daily chore of infielding.

Cronin must have known better than anyone else he was all through as a top ball player. He was obliged to take off a great deal of excess weight to get into condition to play, while he had to punish himself with other training routines.

Joe Cronin

When one is 39 years of age, he cannot play big league baseball even on the low plane it is today any more than a heavyweight fighter who has passed the age of 30 can hope to win from a roaring youngster in his twenties.

Cronin will still be of some value to the Red Sox as a pinch hitter. One who could hit as well as Joe is still able to whack the agate against the fences. The last thing a ball players loses is his ability to hit.

Tom Yawkey and Eddie Collins must have known that Cronin was through as a top ball player for several years, but they probably gave in to Joe's desire to help out the player shortage. In view of Cronin's injury, Yawkey and Collins will naturally insist that Joe devote his time in the future to managing the club from the bench and stepping up to the bat occasionally as a pinch hitter.

I do not like to see my sports heroes trying to compete when they are mere shadows of their former greatness.

* * *

Improved as Manager

CRONIN IS an improved manager. He does a better job as a pilot when he is not playing. He is able to sit back, pick the weaknesses in the opposition and get the best results from his own club.

I do not believe Cronin was under the impression he was still a first class ball player at the time he was forced out of the game. Joe is too smart for that.

I give Cronin credit for being as wise as Gene Tunney, Jack Dempsey and Jack Sharkey who moved out of the heavyweight boxing game when they knew they had passed the peak of their form. Dempsey turned down an offer of $750,000 from Tex Rickard to meet Tunney in a third bout in New York because he knew he did not have a chance of winning. The old Manassa Mauler realized he would probably be knocked out and that he might suffer an injury that would impair his future.

A $750,000 purse is a real temptation, but one must admire the athlete who can pass it up because he no longer can put on a real show and is also likely to get injured.

* * *

Baker Good Choice

CRONIN MADE a good selection when he named Del Baker to manage the Red Sox during his absence. Baker won an American League pennant with Detroit in 1940. He is a sound baseball man and he will get the best possible results with the players with which he has to work.

With only fair minor league material, Baker and other managers will experience their troubles this year. The public, however, has accepted baseball on its present plane, and if the Sox and Braves can win a few ball games the fans will support the clubs.

Pat Demers Win Unimpressive

Pat Demers, Brockton, finally beat Jean Barriere, Montreal, taking a unanimous decision in the 10-round feature of a Goodwin A. C. show last night at the Arena before 2800. But Demers, sweeping all three votes, did not improve his chances of getting a shot at Gus "Pell" Mell, his target of the moment.

Demers swept seven rounds from Barriere, but was not impressive in so doing. Judges Joe Blumsack and Jim Shaughnessy and Referee Ed McDonald balloted for Demers, who had a visible margin at the finish, yet didn't look like a candidate for a Mell fight in his success over the wiry Canadian.

Demers at least got the satisfaction of chasing the Barriere jinx. They fought three times before with Barriere chalking up one decision, one technical kayo win and one draw as Demers was shut out on all occasions.

The weights were 134¾ for Demers and 129½ for Barriere.

George LaRover, 138½, Philadelphia, slammed out an 8-round unanimous decision over rugged Ralph Walton, 139, Portland, in the semi-final.

Leo Macucci, 128½, Portland, was too much for George Butler, 125, Boston, in a six rounder.

Johnny Priest, 134, Cambridge, squeezed by Pedro Crivello, 137, Cambridge, in another six.

Bobby Pooler, 142½, outpointed Cliff Carden, 148, Boston, in the opening four.

The paid attendance was 2524; the gross $5056 and the net $3332.

Braves Pick Up Gem In Norman Wallen

By BILL GRIMES

PHILADELPHIA, April 21—After an 11-hour overnight ride from Columbus, O., Norman Wallen, who was purchased from Indianapolis on Patriot's Day, co-starred with "Butch" Nieman yesterday while making his National League debut.

Butch Nieman

Wallen is a product of the Milwaukee sandlots. He is 27 years of age, stands six feet and weighs 187 pounds. He decided he had enough education after two years in high school and turned to the national pastime. He broke into organized ball with Warsaw, Wis., of the Northern League in 1939 and returned to the same club, which was in the Cleveland chain the following season. Then, he stayed out of baseball for three years.

After the 1940 season, Wallen decided to quite the Northern League and play semi-pro ball around his home town. Not enough "sugar." A knee injury kept him sidelined for the ensuing season and in 1943 he was assigned to Cedar Rapids. But, when that club didn't operate he was transferred to Wilkesbarre of the Eastern League.

He did not report however. But, the baseball bug got him again last spring and he went to Wilkes Barre, where he had a fine year. He registered so well with Bissonette, that "Del" recommended that John Quinn have Indianapolis draft him.

When Eddie Joost fractured his toe on Wednesday, General Manager John Quinn wired the Indianapolis club to send Wallen here to join the Braves. The newcomer was at the hotel when the Boston team arrived yesterday morning.

BISSONETTE SPOTTED HIM

As the Braves had only three infielders when they came to town, Wallen stepped right into the lineup yesterday afternoon, sight unseen, except for Del Bissonette.

During the pre-game hitting and fielding practice, Wallen acted like an experienced veteran. He displayed surprisingly good form at the bat and around third base. He has fine wrist action and balls seem to snap off his bat and afield he showed a strong overhand accurate arm, and good hands.

As far as the box score shows, Wallen didn't have a fielding chance yesterday. However, he made one grand play in the fifth inning. Buster Adams turned on an inside pitch and drove the ball at bullet speed down over third base. Wallen darted to his right, took the ball on a short vicious hop, which partly unbalanced him and Adams, who doesn't waste any time getting down the line, was credited with an infield hit on a very close play.

THIS BABY CAN HIT

It was at the bat that Wallen was particularly impressive. On his first time up he hit straight away and drove a terrific liner right at Vinc DiMaggio. In the fourth, he "started" Carden Gillenwater, who was on first and rifled a drive down the right field line to the gate, scoring his mate. He should have been credited with a three bagger but the official scorer gave him a double, stating that he took third on the throw to the plate.

The Gillenwater tally put the Braves back in the ball game and they were only one run behind when Norm trotted home, while Steve Shemo was forcing Phil Masi at second.

In his third appearance, Wallen staggered "Bitsy" Mott, the Blue Birds' third sacker, with a well stroke grounded but he went down swinging on his last time up.

If Wallen is able to show up as well as he did yesterday, he'll take a job away from some spare infielder when the Braves are back at war strength. But, in the meantime, he will be a valuable asset to the badly crippled Braves, who haven't been able to field their first team in any game this season.

FITZY FEARS NIEMAN

"Why does that Guy have to pick on me," moaned Freddie Fitzsimmons after yesterday's game. Of course, he was referring to "Butch" Nieman who propelled the Braves to a 6-5 victory with two away in the 9th by polling a home run out in to 20th street, with two aboard.

"On the Braves second visit to Shibe Park last year," continued Fitzie, "we were leading 1-0 in the 9th. Then, that guy stepped up and hit one out of the Park to tie the count. That was bad enough but when he came up again in the 11th, he did it again, that was too much. You couldn't use the words if I told you what I think of this one."

Because Al Javery's arm isn't quite right, Manager Coleman will use Jimmy Wallace this afternoon. If the young veteran of World War II comes through with a win, it will be Javery and Nate Andrews tomorrow, with the Braves favored to make a clean sweep of the series.

NOTES OF BRAVES

Pres. Louis Perini and General Manager John Quinn left for New York in the eighth inning and missed the garrison finish and "Butch" Nieman's winning clout.

Jimmy Foxx is in better condition than he has been in some years. He is working as hard as any member of the Bluebirds and weighs less than 200, 198 to be exact. He was hitting the ball with his old time authority during batting practice. And, he's still a prime favorite in this town.

Dick Culler, who, while with the Millers of Milwaukee played against Carden Gillenwater last season, tells me that the Braves' new outfielder will show the New England fans the greatest brand of center-fielding they've ever seen when his bad leg rounds into shape. Well, if he's playing on one leg, Gillenwater is doing a grand job, with 23 put overs in five games.

The Hamner Brothers, Wes and Gran, are a long way from major leaguers. They are getting by fairly well defensively, but they look like schoolboys at the plate. With a throw coming in from DiMaggio, yesterday, Wes had his back to the outfield and when the ball caroomed of Garn's glove, it connked him on the noggin.

Umpire George Magerkurth was obliged to leave yesterday's game after he had been hit by a foul tip off Carden Gillenwater's bat in the 5th. Bill Stewart raced in to the umpires' room and donned his shin guards and went back of the plate.

Jack Dempsey Lands In Australia Area

In a broadcast reported by Blue Network monitors in San Francisco, the Australian radio said Dempsey visited Australian Army camps and acted as referee at Army boxing matches.

Free For All, Derby Choice, Nears Peak

By DAVE WILSON

Free For All, John Marsch's unbeaten colt and probable favorite for Kentucky Derby honors, is not far away from peak condition, judging by a seven-furlong trial over a good Churchill Downs racing strip in 1:30 . . . Kingarvie, a juvenile that wintered at Hialeah Park, is showing to advantage in trials at Woodbine Park, Canada.

The Pine Tree Stable's horses are slated to remain at the farm in Framingham, Mass., until a definite date for the resumption of racing is set . . . Harry Hart believes he has a real runner in Coast Invasion, a half brother to Free For All.

F. W. Hooper Stable, numbering 22 head, have moved from Hialeah to Belmont Park . . . South American interests have purchased Quick Draw and Mabel Dauber from Ray Archer for a reported price of $12,000.

Jack Whyte, a regular on New England tracks for many years, may campaign his stable in Canada this summer . . . Other American stables may follow Whyte's lead.

Vanities Put Extra Punch in Vets' Show

Skating Vanities brilliant cast of 125 will send cheer into the wards of all hospitalized servicemen in this area tomorrow afternoon with a special matinee at the Boston Garden to provide added funds for their recreation.

The entire receipts of this gala matinee on closing day will be turned over to the Record-American fund which has brought considerable cheer to these bed-ridden and wheel-chaired servicemen who are entitled to every consideration.

This matinee will be Harold Steinman's parting gesture to servicemen. The spectacular production leaves here after Sunday's shows headed for Providence.

Grateful for the way Boston has received the Vanities and happy at an opportunity to aid this worthy cause, Steinman is making this an all out matinee and is rooting for a packed house.

It depends on Greater Boston fans.

There are still plenty of good seats available—make up a party of friends or take the family.

A ticket purchased is a gift to a wounded soldier, sailor or marine.

It could mean a Christmas present; some phonograph records; a call to his home or some recreational equipment.

Mr. and Mrs. Citizen would gladly contribute to so worthy a cause, but that's not necessary.

All that's needed are tickets for Sunday's matinee.

In other words, each ticket purchased yesterday afternoon makes a direct contribution while seeing a whale of a show.

Vets Make Giants First Division Club

By the Associated Press

Extra base power by the New York Giants' oldsters kept the Polo Grounders in the National League lead today although Manager Mel Ott still hasn't seen a starting pitcher go the route.

The Giants surprised their fondest admirers in winning four of their first five games with a display of slugging that found more ardent boosters comparing the Phil Weintraub-Ernie Lombardi-Ott combination with the famous Yankees' murderers' row.

The general impression is that the Giants will be tough to keep out of the first division if the pitching holds up.

Harry Feldman might have gone all the way in yesterday's 10-6 victory over Brooklyn before 12,640 at the Polo Grounds opener, but Ott took no chances. He derricked him for a pinch hitter although Feldman contributed a homer in the sixth.

WEINTRAUB HITS TWO

Phil Weintraub sent two into the stands, each with a man on, and Ernie Lombardi drove home two more runs to up his R. B. I. total to 13. Mike Sandlock and Ed Stanky homered for the Brooks.

The New York Yankees took to the road for a delayed presidential game at Washington and earned their fourth straight victory, 6-3, at Mickey Haefner's expense. Floyd Bevens got credit for the win but needed help from rookie Al Gettel and three hits off Nick Etten's bat. A crowd of 24,494 watched Speaker Sam Rayburn of the House throw out the first ball.

The White Sox ran their streak to three in a row by edging the champion St. Louis Browns, 3-2, on Roy Schalk's double in the tenth. Ed Lopat did all the chucking and contributed two safe blows, one a homer. Only 3649 were present at Chicago.

Rip Sewell of Pittsburgh became the 11th active major league pitcher to hit the 100 victory mark by turning back the Chicago Cubs with nine blows, 5-4. Bob Elliott helped him along with a two-run homer to the delight of 9449 customers.

28,357 AT DETROIT

Largest turnout of the "second" openers was at Detroit where 28,357 saw Cleveland's Steve Gromek shackle the Tigers with six hits while the Indians hopped on Stubby Overmire for all runs of a 4-1 triumph.

Small turnouts at Boston in the American and Philadelphia in the national left the day's total at 84,731. The first 15 opening games drew 186,324 with St. Louis prying off the lid against Cincinnati today to complete the picture.

Butch Nieman's dramatic round tripper with two on and two out in the ninth saved the Braves a 6-5 nod over the Phillies' Charley Schanz. Rookie Charley Cozart, up from Atlanta, received credit for his first big league decision.

Frankie Hayes' two-run homer in the first started the Philadelphia A's off to a 5-3 margin over Boston. Don Black took the pitching credit over Joe Bowman.

Sidney Howe Back With Wings

TORONTO, April 21 (AP)—The revitalized Detroit Red Wings, boasting two straight wins over the Toronto Maple Leafs, hope to even the final Stanley Cup hockey playoffs at three games apiece by beating the Leafs in the sixth game of the series tonight.

"We've got them on the run," asserted Manager Jack Adams of the Wings. He referred to Toronto's failure to win or tie the last two games after taking the first three games by shutout scores.

Veteran Syd Howe, sidelined with an injury, is expected to return to the wing lineup while Toronto fans expect to see more of Nick Metz, who appeared only momentarily in the fifth game while nursing a knee injury which kept him out of the first four games.

A victory for Toronto would bring them their third Stanley Cup since 1932. If Detroit wins, the teams will catch a midnight train for Detroit, where the seventh game will be played Sunday night. In the event of a tie in the seventh contest, the eighth game also would be played in Detroit.

Mrs. Lawson Page Regains Title

PINEHURST, N. C., April 21 (AP)—Mrs. Estelle Lawson Page, Chapel Hill housewife, has won the North and South Women's Golf tournament for the seventh time.

That is a record. Before this year she shared the honor of having won the tournament six times with Mrs. Glenna Collett Vare of Philadelphia.

Mrs. Page entered the tournament this year only because of the request of her husband, Sgt. Julius A. Page, recently wounded and now under treatment at a hospital.

Layden Cool to Bid On New Grid League

CHICAGO, April 21 (AP)—Possibility of two major professional football leagues, working in a manner similar to baseball's major leagues, was envisioned today as the All-America football conference moved toward conclusion of its final organization meeting.

The All-America group, its postwar plans already past the blueprint stage, yesterday asked the National Football League for an audience with a view toward paving the way toward collaboration, or an understanding, on schedules and player drafts.

The new organization received somewhat of a cold shoulder from Comr. Elmer Layden of the 25-year-old national Football League. But it was hopeful that before its meeting adjourned intra-league details, including a possible "World Series" between circuit champions, would be worked out satisfactorily.

Representatives of seven franchise holders in the All-America conference were present for today's meeting, at which final details of a constitution and bylaws will be worked out. In addition, the organization will consider the application of Dr. D. M. Nigro of Kansas City, Mo., for a franchise in that city.

A two-man committee, Lt. Paul Brown, now in the Navy but who has been named coach and general manager of the Cleveland entry, and owner John L. Keeshin of the Chicago franchise, will attempt to meet with Layden today, said Christy Walsh, league vice-president. Yesterday Layden declined to discuss the prospects with newsmen, but in a formal statement he said:

"All I know of new leagues is what I read in the newspapers. There is nothing for the National League to talk about as far as new leagues are concerned until someone gets a football and plays a game."

The All-America already has issued franchises in three National Football League cities—New York, Chicago, and Cleveland. Others are held in Buffalo, N. Y., Miami, Fla., Los Angeles and San Francisco.
